REP. GIEGLER BACKS 'ALTERNATIVE' BUDGET PROPOSAL

Spending Plan Would Not Raise Taxes

Hartford--State Rep. Janice Giegler (R-Danbury, New Fairfield) today joined with House and Senate Republican leaders in offering an alternative budget plan that would: cut state gas taxes, eliminate a business tax and balance by offering thousands of state employees an early retirement plan. The proposal would reduce spending by $163 million next year, according to the non-partisan Office of Fiscal Analysis (OFA).

House Speaker James Amann, D-Milford, Senate President Pro Tempore Donald Williams, D-Brooklyn, and Appropriations House Chair Denise Merrill, D-Mansfield, recently stated that it might be better to do nothing regarding budget adjustments for the next fiscal year.

When the Legislature started the current legislative session in February, a surplus of more than $200 million was projected. OFA now projects a deficit of $139 million. Rep. Giegler said state taxpayers cannot afford the impact of leaving the state budget 'as is.'

"One thing I've heard loud and clear from constituents is that they simply cannot afford another tax increase," said Rep. Giegler "Leaving the budget as is would set us up for major tax increases in the coming years. Our proposal offers consumers some relief from taxes and would help ensure that the deficit remains at a manageable level."

Some details of the budget proposal include measures that:

- Cut gas prices by 10 cents through a summer state tax moratorium and a roll back the scheduled gross receipts tax increase of .5 percent on July 1. Those roll backs will save consumers $50 million, Republicans said.
- Eliminate the $250 Business Entity Tax over two years that all businesses pay just for opening their doors. This will save $35 million ($17.5 million in the first year).
- Phase out of the so-called Death Tax cliff that will save estates $24 million and help keep more people in Connecticut ($12 million in the first year).
- Offer up to 11,600 eligible state workers an early retirement incentive program, or ERIP, to save a projected $163 million in the next fiscal year. This would help people receive long-term health care at home rather than in a nursing home. It would allow individuals to use their Medicaid benefits to cover long-term health care at their homes instead of at nursing home facilities.

- Offer up to 11,600 eligible state workers an early retirement incentive program, or ERIP, to save a projected $163 million in the next fiscal year.

The ERIP offered in 2003, in the midst of the last state fiscal crisis, saw more than 4,000 workers retire and cut the state payroll by more than $155 million. Rep. Giegler noted that no state workers would lose their jobs because of the ERIP.
