Are You Worried About Recalls?

By State Representative Pam Sawyer

The federal government has streamlined your ability to keep up to date on any recalls that you and your family might need to know about. You can now visit www.recall.gov to get the latest information on the recall of consumer products, motor vehicles, food, medicine, cosmetics, environmental products and boats.

This terrific website also allows you to search their database for all recalls, and enables you to keep up to date on the most recent recalls issued. The site also allows you to sign up for email alerts on the latest recalls so you will be sent an email every time a recall is issued. You can pick the types of products you want to be notified about by selecting them.
